Clear the Track for the Glendale Southern Pacific Depot

CLEAR track ahead for a new Southern Pacific depot for Glendale. Now that the plans have been approved by the railroad commission, nothing stands in the way of the actual construction work, which, according to railroad officials, will start at once.

Glendale has waited many years for this depot, but the fact that we are to get one to cost in the neighborhood of $50,000 makes the waiting worth while.

This depot means more to Glendale than just the stopping of trains. It means the advertising of our city to a great many people. For the reason that passengers for or from many surrounding cities, including Pasadena and Hollywood, can save considerable time by using this depot, which means that its use will become general. The time is not far distant when Glendale's size will justify a branch station somewhere in the vicinity of Broadway, but for a main depot to serve the several localities its present location is by far the best.

THE governor of South Dakota recently took a drastic step to reduce the price of gasoline in his state. Governor McMaster on returning from Marion, O., where he attended the funeral of President Harding, delayed his return long enough to purchase in Chicago 160,000 gallons of gasoline to be shipped to nine South Dakota cities for resale to motorists in the state.

The belief is quite general that the people are being held up by the oil companies in the prices demanded for gasoline. The facts should be obtained and if this belief is justified the state should assume absolute control. Gasoline is getting to be a necessity to a large percentage of the people and no more than a reasonable profit should be allowed in its sale.

The oil companies are entitled to a fair return for their investment, but if they are demanding that we all should pay tribute to exorbitant profits, the practice should be stopped without undue delay.

REALTY BOARD TAKES UP LIVE ISSUES AT WEDNESDAY MEETING

Councilman Horn Is Confident Sewer Will Be Permitted by the Los Angeles Officials Upon Completion of Maps

ACTION IS TAKEN ON LOS FELIZ SUITS

Direct Western Union Wire to Glendale Is Urged; Purchase No Bond Issues Before Sewer, Says Councilman of Civic Center Plans

The matter of securing sewers for Glendale was the main subject of interest before the meeting of the Realty Board at noon Wednesday.

"We members of the council," said W. A. Horn, "are confident that we will be permitted to connect with the Los Angeles outfall. The engineer is now working on the maps for this line, without which the city attorney of Los Angeles says the whole matter will be illegal."

After considerable discussion by the various board members it was decided to appoint a committee to cooperate with the Glendale city council in this matter.

The matter of the law suits which were brought against a number of property owners who are located in the assessment district for the improvement of Los Feliz road, was brought to the attention of the board by Realtor Roy D. King.

"There is something wrong with the law that will permit such a thing as this," said Mr. King, "and I think the Realty Board should take steps to have this thing remedied, if possible. Notices of assessments of this kind should be sent out with the tax bill or some plan whereby the property owners, non-resident as well as resident, could be notified of such assessments."

It was decided to appoint a committee to look into this matter and to ask the California State Realty association to lend its influence toward the correcting of this evil.

The matter of having a direct wire Western Union telegraph established in Glendale was also discussed. Councilman Horn and W. B. Twining stated that they had endeavored to send telegrams to Glendale, but that their messages were sent to Los Angeles and relayed to this city.

That the high school should be purchased as a civic center for Glendale was the consensus of opinion of those present at this meeting. Several members of the board who spoke on this subject stated, however, that they believe it is not now the proper time to bring this matter before the voters of the city, but that it should be made to wait for the sewer proposition.

"The city council," said Councilman Horn, "is not going to start any bond proposition or present anything, until after this sewer matter is settled. If anything that involves a bond issue is brought up it will have to come from the outside. We feel that the sewer proposition is the most vital question before Glendale today.

"Glendale should by all means secure the high school ground as a civic center. It is the last available piece of property suitable for this purpose. It is ideally located and it should be purchased."

The local telephone situation was discussed by W. B. Twining.

"This telephone proposition is getting worse instead of better," said W. B. Twining. "For more than two years we have been receiving promises from the telephone company that 'next month' the service was to be improved. Instead of being bettered it is going down hill."

It was announced that the telephone committee of the Glendale Realty Board, of which Mr. Twining is chairman, intends co-operating with the similar committee from the Chamber of Commerce to investigate. The telephone toll between Glendale and Los Angeles was also vigorously condemned.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell stated that at least six of the fast trains on the S. P., including the Owl and the Lark, do not stop here, notwithstanding the fact that it is generally believed otherwise.

It was decided to appoint a committee to look into this matter and to work in conjunction with the city council regarding the railroad proposition.

JACKSON ANSWERS C. OF C.

Declares He Welcomes Entrance of Committee and Its Activities

BUT NOT FOR BIDS

Says He Is Depending on Publicity to Receive Offers of Sites

When interviewed this morning relative to the committee appointed by the chamber of commerce directorate to confer with Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson relative to a new location for Glendale's main postoffice, Mr. Jackson said he had already been advised by the committee that it wished to confer with him and until that conference took place and he knew what the committee desired, he was not in a position to make any statement.

"Nothing new has developed," he said, "since the bids were opened. The matter is entirely in the hands of Inspector Hall. He is a new man and wants to look around. The only offer we have had to submit a bid was for a location too far out to be considered.

The question was asked: "Then Mr. Hall has simply been making a survey of territory?"

Postmaster: "Yes."

Question: "In the zone asked for within a radius of four blocks from Brand and Broadway?

Postmaster: "Yes."

Q. Have you approached any property owners in that zone, asking them to put in bids?"

Postmaster: "Why, no. You can't go to a man and demand that he make a bid. I welcome the entrance of this chamber of commerce committee and its activities."

Q. "You welcome activity by the committee in securing bids?"

Postmaster: "I didn't say that I will be glad to see them and confer with them."

Q. Are you advertising for bids?"

Postmaster: "No. We are depending on the publicity which the matter is getting through the papers. Inspector Hall, when he was here Monday, said he would see me again inside of ten days."

Gompers Attacks Steel Hours Cut

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—(United Press).—Charges that the United States Steel corporation, in abolishing the 12-hour day, does not intend to make the 8-hour day effective for all workers, were made here today by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Gompers cited a statement made by Judge E. H. Gary, which, he said, shows that the 10 hour day is to be made effective in many cases.

"The American public demands a change from a 12-hour to an 8-hour day and not from the former to a 10-hour day," Gompers asserted.

MERCHANTS HAVE OLD-FASHIONED OUTING

Picnic at Happiland Park Brings Large Crowd for a Good Time

Little girls and boys, big girls and boys, the young, the old, the fat, the thin, came out yesterday to the family picnic which the Merchants' Credit association gives every year. Such a good time was had last year at Glendale-Verdugo park, now "Happiland," that it was again selected for the midsummer festivity.

Early in the afternoon the program of special contests began with the boys' sack race. The preliminary megaphone announcement was made by President Owen Emery and somehow the boys heard and came running from all quarters of the park. By the time they were ready to hop off, a big ring of interested spectators, mostly parents and small brothers had collected, and that increased as the program advanced.

The day was ideal in temperature. Everybody was good natured in consequence and disposed to take a change in all contests to which he or she happened to be eligible. It was surprising to see how many good sports showed up among the old ladies and gentlemen, the fat men and the fat ladies and of course the boys were there for all milk drinking, pie eating and cracker contests, for where will you find a picnic at which boys are not hungry and able to turn it to account if a prize is offered?

Excellent music at the pavilion by an impromptu orchestra composed of Glendale men commandeered by "Bill" Bode when the regular orchestra failed to show up, drew the itching feet of the dancers and also an almost equal number of onlookers who evidently enjoyed the scene. During the afternoon the floor was not unduly crowded and there was no excuse for remaining away. Girls who lacked squires danced together and the gallant members of the dance committee, headed by Don Webb saw to it that there were no wall flowers.

As evening came on the crowd thickened there and around the concessions where paddle wheels were spinning and hams and other tempting prizes changed ownership.

The first ball game on the diamond was between merchant teams of the east side and the west side and Glendalians of the Glendale avenue variety bragged long and loud over the victory achieved by their representatives.

After that spontaneously organized teams made up of men, some of whom had not twirled a ball in years, occupied the field and enjoyed themselves hilariously in spite of the criticisms of expert Young America.

A good many improvements in the park were noted and more are promised by the Happiland company, otherwise Haddock & Nibley, who plan to install a fountain on the porch promenade at the dancing pavilion. This porch, by the way, has vastly improved conditions over last year. Probably next year, when the merchants hold their third picnic there will be still greater improvement if the Happiland plans are carried out.

The site has the natural foundation for a beautiful park in its meadow groves and wooded slopes. Seats in the groves were appropriated by many groups who enjoyed the chance for a visit with friends in such pleasant surroundings.

There was nothing jazzy about the day. It was just a good old-fashioned picnic outing. If there could only have been a horse race, it would have been complete.

INCORPORATION OF C. OF C. IS SUGGESTED

Secretary Sanders Discusses Possible Advantages of Action

The incorporation of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce under the laws of the state of California, was suggested by Secretary Sanders at the meeting of the board held Wednesday night. He stated that at the summer school of secretaries of commerce which he recently attended, the point was brought out that when organized simply under a constitution and by-laws, members absent from a meeting are not bound by the actions of those who are present at the meeting, whereas, when legally incorporated, all are alike responsible whether present or not.

As the suggestion opened up interesting possibilities and would, if carried out, tend to promote attendance on directorate meetings, the consideration of the matter was postponed until a full meeting of the board.

VERDUGO PARK PURCHASE PLAN

That the one-time Glendale-Verdugo park is still considered a desirable civic possession was urged at the special meeting of Chamber of Commerce directors Wednesday night where a letter signed by D. C. Butler, Dr. W. C. Mabry and C. M. Young, representing Camp No. 167 of the Spanish-American War Veterans, was read by Secretary Sanders. The letter quoted a resolution adopted at the last meeting of the camp recommending the re-purchase by the city of Glendale-Verdugo park which the camp had ascertained could be secured at the price paid by the Haddock-Nibley company. It urged the chamber to call a conference of civic organizations of Glendale to take such action as might be necessary to secure said park.

Because of the small attendance on the meeting, on motion of Director Hayselden consideration of the communication was deferred for one week.

Lomita Avenue Eucalyptus Trees Are Protected by Ordinance

August 15, 1923.

Editor Glendale Daily Press:

A local item in your issue of this date tells of an effort of Miss Elsie Schwartz to enlist co-operation in a movement to prevent the destruction of the eucalyptus trees on Lomita avenue.

Miss Schwartz is doubtless unaware that an ordinance covering the protection of these noble trees has been passed by a former city council and is still effective. This ordinance was passed as a result of a petition signed by 750 taxpayers praying for the preservation of these noble landmarks, the oldest eucalyptus trees on this continent.

If Miss Schwartz will visit the City Hall she may be shown a copy of the ordinance.

Very respectfully,
JAMES NEILL.

C. OF C. TO AID CANTOR IN CONCERT

Madame Prindell Asks Moral Support for American Artists

GLENDALE HAS MANY

Glendale Musician to Begin Tour on Sept. 22, Advertising City

Madame Newcome Prindell, impresario, appeared before the directors of the chamber of commerce Wednesday night to ask its moral support of the work she is doing to secure a hearing for American artists and establish their reputations abroad. Her stronglea was that we pay large sums to foreign artists and let our own, who have equal talent, starve. She declared that Glendale has wonderful teachers and artists who are not appreciated at their true worth by the community, and her endeavor will be to awaken that appreciation. She stated that she is sending to the Orient this year a group of artists on a concert tour one of whom, Henry Cantor, is a Glendale man. Before leaving he is to give a concert September 22 at the Tuesday Afternoon club under the auspices of that club. She urged the importance of the support which the community can give by filling the house on that occasion and asked the chamber for its support. She said:

"You find plenty of opportunity for real estate people and oil people, but so little doing for artists of all kinds. No matter how commercial we have to be, there must be something that leavens the hard commercial end and digests it. Some very poor music has been served up to us under the name of art. I think the business men have a wrong impression of what real good music is. They think that technique and gymnastics are the main features. We are trying to give the public something that it will enjoy. The standard of American music and musicians must be lifted. We must get away from the importation of foreigners when our own are starving to death.

"We want to send to the different countries. America's best. The tour will last ten months and will visit China, Japan, Porto Rico and other countries and will be supported by the government. They will everywhere be introduced as Americans and the towns from which they come will be named.

"Mr. Cantor's concert will be sponsored by the Tuesday Afternoon club, and Mrs. Mattison B. Jones of the Glendale Music club and I ask your cooperation in making it a success."

Secretary Sanders and Vice President Hewitt expressed on behalf of the directorate their interest in the matter, agreeing to place tickets on sale in the chamber headquarters and promised patronage of the concert.

After Madame Prindell had left the meeting Director Kitterman said he was in entire sympathy with what she had said about the big money paid foreign artists and he thought it high time we recognized and patronized America and Glendale's own.

ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP FRUSTRATED

An attempt was made at 1:10 o'clock this morning to hold up E. E. Fitz, 1322 North Louise, as he was driving down Verdugo road, according to the Glendale police department.

Mr. Fitz, the report states, was driving south on Verdugo road when a Hudson Super Six carrying three men approached and tried to stop him. Fitz applied the gas and escaped.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE URGED TO ENTER INTO POSTOFFICE LOCATION

R. F. Kitterman Declares Belief Postmaster Is Acting Selfish in Connection With the Visit of Inspector to Glendale

SUGGESTS IMMEDIATE INDEPENDENT ACTION

Other Speakers Criticize Jackson for Apparently Playing "Lone Hand" and for Lack of Co-operation With the Business Men of City

The importance of taking a hand in the location of Glendale's main postoffice before it is too late was urged by Vice President Hewitt at a meeting of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, held Wednesday night, and on motion of Director Kitterman that a committee of three be appointed to confer with Postmaster Jackson and Inspector Hall and if necessary with the department at Washington in regard to a site acceptable to Glendale, the presiding chairman named R. F. Kitterman as chairman, H. M. Butts and Dr. Henry R. Harrower. In the informal discussion Mr. Hayselden told of the congestion in the present quarters making a change necessary. Others who spoke charged Postmaster Jackson with "playing a one hand" and not confiding in the chamber and other civic organizations disinterestedly anxious to locate the office where it will serve the interests of Glendale, and also as being not quite honest in pretensions of ignorance or indifference to locations so long as the office has the room and equipment needed.

Director Kitterman said: "I think Postmaster Jackson has not been fair with the chamber or the citizens. He made the statement that he would know nothing about the location but he has been going around with the inspector and no one has been consulted or invited to go around with them. The chamber is not acting from a selfish motive but I do think Mr. Jackson is acting selfishly. I think the chamber should take a hand in the matter and try to get information about what is being recommended because when it is once located nothing can be done. I cannot see any reason why Mr. Jackson should not cooperate with the chamber. If a suitable location could be secured on East Broadway, it would be a happy solution."

Chairman Hewitt stated that a petition was being circulated for the location of the office on Broadway within four blocks of Brand and it was the consensus of opinion that such a location would satisfy the majority of citizens.

IOWA AND GLENDALE CONCERT

Saturday Night at Hollywood to Be Doubly Dedicated

LOCAL ARTIST PLAYS

Daughter of Iowa Calls on Old Home Folks to Attend

Next Saturday evening will be Glendale Night and Iowa Night at the Hollywood Bowl and it is expected that the big Iowa colony of Southern California will come out in force and that all Glendale will be there. This special reservation was made in compliment to Miss Gertrude Cleophas who will be the solo pianist of the program with a very beautiful accompaniment furnished by the orchestra led by the famous Emil Oberhoffer, who was recently entertained at the Tuesday Afternoon club by the Glendale Music company.

Miss Cleophas is a daughter of Iowa and a resident of Glendale, which explains the linking of the two so different places. She will play the concerto by MacDowell, one of America's most celebrated composers whose life has been a tragedy.

"Exchange Tickets" which will entitle the holders to 50 cent seats will be on sale at the Chamber of Commerce and the Glendale Music company, and Glendalians who do not own autos can reach the Bowl without difficulty by taking a P. E. car for Los Angeles, getting out at Sunset boulevard and transferring to a car going west marked "Bowl."

Miss Cleophas, who is a very finished artist, has played the MacDowell concerto before when Oberhoffer was leading his orchestra in Minneapolis, Minn, and she was the soloist.

C. OF C. LETTER TO UNI-DRIVE CO. IS INTERPRETED

The interpretation of the letter written by officials of the Chamber of Commerce to the Uni-Drive Motor Truck corporation came up for discussion at the meeting of directors Wednesday night. Vice President Hewitt declared the letter itself and the minutes of the meeting of the board when representatives of the corporation appeared before it and submitted a statement of assets and the purpose in selling stock, showed that the directorate had confined itself to an invitation to the company to locate in Glendale and had specifically gone on record as not indorsing the stock of that corporation or any other stock selling corporation which may locate in Glendale, no matter how worthy, the policy of the chamber being opposed to all such indorsements.

On motion of Director Hayselden the further consideration of the matter went over until such time as a larger representation of the board should be present.

INTERNATIONAL BIBLE STUDENTS CONVENE AUG. 18

Every Train Is Bringing Delegates to Big L. A. Convention

Practically every train arriving in Los Angeles is bringing groups of delegates from the midwest and eastern states for the greatest religious convention ever held in California, that of the International Bible Students' association, beginning Saturday, August 18. Daily sessions will be held at the Trinity auditorium, Grand avenue, and the convention will culminate with a great mass meeting in the Coliseum at Exposition park, Sunday, August 26.

At this meeting the famous jurist-evangelist, Judge J. F. Rutherford will be the speaker of the day. Extraordinary arrangements are being made for the reception of huge crowds, which are expected to represent every state in the Union. Judge Rutherford is regarded as the successor of the famous Pastor Russell, and is internationally known for his striking pulpit pronouncements.

According to Ernest D. Sexton chairman of the general committee of arrangements for the convention, the program of the daily sessions will include discussions concerning present-day events in the economic and social world, the climax coming in the final address of Judge Rutherford, on the text, "All Nations Marching to Armageddon." Judge Rutherford is now on his way from New York to Los Angeles, by way of Canadian cities and Tacoma, in all of which great mass meetings have been held. A large delegation from Canada is to attend the convention.

Judge Rutherford recently returned to America from England, where he addressed one of the largest crowds ever assembled in London, in Royal Albert hall. He has visited all of the capitals of Europe and brings first-hand information as to conditions there.

VENICE BATHING GIRL PARADE IS SET FOR AUG. 19

VENICE, Calif., Aug. 16.—Sixteen beautiful blondes rivaling in "women's crowning glory," the brilliancy of California sunshine; twelve dainty brunettes, with tresses as dark as midnight hour; twenty girls whose locks are in between, so to speak, as to color and shade; and—

One captivating red head!

These are the entries so far in the Bathing Girls' Parade for 1923, which will be held under the auspices of the newly organized Bay Cities Beach association. In addition, several of the bigger motion picture studios are placing in judgment no less than six pretty mermaids each. It is expected that before the entries are closed, no less than 75, and perhaps 100, charming young misses will have applied for the opportunity of winning fame and gold awards on August 19.

The whole hearted spirit of the beach enterprises, assisted by that of the business men of the Bay cities assure a spectacle the like of which has never before been seen in the country. Cooperation is the keynote of 1923, and at least 10,000 people are expected to throng the sands and beaches on Sunday, August 19.

Already six movie weeklies have asked permission to "shoot" the parade, and these pictures, shown in thousands of American theaters, will center the keenest of attention on the three cities of the Pacific playground.

A Better Clay

A white, perfected clay did this

By Edna Wallace Hopper

After 40 years as a famous beauty, I still look like a girl Thousands who see me daily, on the stage and elsewhere, marvel at my youthful bloom and contours.

But mine was largely a cultivated beauty. French beauty experts, many years ago, taught me how to do it. And my girlish looks at my grand old age are due to the helps French scientists created.

I have supplied those helps to countless women, and they secured like results. Plain women became beauties. Women old in years have warded off every sign of age. So I know these helps can bring to millions what they crave. And I have decided to supply those helps to all who wish to use them.

First, new-type clay

Many years ago French experts taught me to use clay. They said that famous beauties of all ages had employed it.

They then used crude and muddy clays, like many use today. But they have since perfected clay by 20 years of scientific study.

By countless tests they have found the supreme clay, a rare mineral-laden clay. They have learned how to refine it, to remove the useless mud. My clay today is white and clean and dainty. They have found added factors which bring new and manifold results.

The clay I now use—my White Youth Clay—is nothing like the old-time clays. I have used clays for many years, but no other clay has ever brought comparable results. So now I am having this new-type clay made for all who wish to use it.

You must use clay

Clay is essential to beauty at its best. It brings new beauty, and at once. Many women, in 30 minutes, seem to drop ten years. I have seen it make plain women almost raving beauties. Clay users stand out everywhere for their beautiful complexions.

How it restores and maintains one's youthful bloom and contour is shown by my girlish face.

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It acts to remove the cause of sallowness, blackheads and blemishes.

It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. That brings the rosy afterglow, so amazing when you see it.

It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Thus it gives my skin, even at my age, the smoothness and bloom of a girl.

No matter what your age, the greatest kindness I can do you is to urge you to employ it. If young, do it for added beauty. If older, do it to renew your youth.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay is now supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price, 50c and $1 per tube. Also my Youth Cream, which should follow the clay. Also my Facial Youth, my famous liquid cleanser. Also my Hair Youth, to which I owe my heavy, lustrous hair. My Beauty Book comes with each.

I guarantee that any will delight you. If the first package fails to, your dealer will return its price.—Edna Wallace Hopper, business address, Waukesha, Fisc. Adv.

MARK COLLAPSE HITS JAPANESE

[By Associated Press]

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 16.—Collapse of the German mark has been felt in Hawaii more keenly by the Japanese than by any other of the numerous races represented here, according to local bankers, who said that many thousands of dollars have been lost by Japanese in the purchase of marks at apparent "bargain" prices.

When the mark began its sensational slump the Japanese rushed into the market and purchased the exchange in large quantities. The bankers said they expressed belief in the economic future of Germany and refused to consider the possibility of further declines.

Even now, it is said to be extremely difficult to dissuade some of the Japanese from purchasing more marks.

FORD MOTOR CO. RECOMMENCES ADVERTISING

Contract for $7,000,000 Is Signed With New York Agency

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 16 (United Press).—The Ford Motor company will soon begin to advertise in newspapers and publications throughout the country after five years without advertising in the name of the company.

A contract for $7,000,000 advertising to be placed in newspapers and publications in all parts of the country during the next year was announced today by the newly formed advertising department of the Ford company.

The contract was let to the Brotherton Advertising agency, New York, according to Norton T. Brotherton, advertising manager for the Ford company.

Until five years ago the Ford company was a regular user of newspaper space but at that time the Ford advertising department was disorganized and advertising placed only by various Ford agencies throughout the country.

The advertising department was recently re-organized with Brotherton at the head. The Brotherton Advertising agency is an independent concern, however, Brotherton said.

Declare Crops Must Be Saved From Distillers

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—German professors of hygiene have criticized the increase of alcoholism in Germany in a memorial addressed to the various governments urging that further steps be taken to conserve the national foodstuffs now used in making liquor, and to protect public health against the increasing consumption of alcohol.

Dr. I. A. H. Selter, director of the Hygienic Institute of the University of Koenigsberg, issued the memorial on behalf of the Society of German Professors of Hygiene. The document suggests an absolute prohibition of the use of foodstuffs, especially grain, potatoes and sugar, in the manufacture of alcoholic liquors.

'BRASS' OFFERED AT GATEWAY TONIGHT

The screen version of Major Charles G. Norris' novel, "Brass," with Monte Blue portraying the role of Philip Baldwin, comes to the Gateway theater, beginning tonight. This is the story which is enjoying uninterrupted vogue by its realistic treatment of marriage and divorce.

The picture is said to retain the vividness characteristic of the novel. The setting of the story is in sunny California, first in a prosperous rural community, then shifting to bustling San Francisco, where most of the action passes.

The queer domestic life of the young married Baldwins is the theme around which the story is spun. Philip is so busy storming the gates of fortune during the day that he longs for the home of evenings, while his wife, Marjorie, a piquant slip of a girl, doesn't see why having a baby should keep her away from cabarets, gay boon companions and a generally good time. They get divorced; each goes separate ways, falling in love but in the end feeling the gap in their lives. The end is developed in a whirlwind climax.

The Once Over

BY H. I. PHILLIPS

GOLF AT NIGHT ON ILLUMINATED LINKS

It may soon be possible to play golf at night, according to announced from a number of golf authorities who have been experimenting with the problem of links lighting. This will be cheering news to golf players. Most of them should not only be allowed to do their golfing at night, but COMPELLED to.

* * *

And the darker the night the better.

* * *

In St. Louis a country club already has started putting lights on the course. The present idea is to make the illumination compulsory, but some of the members feel there should be electric buttons or switches on the posts, particularly around the tees, so a player can douse the glim after a particularly bad shot.

* * *

Golf clubs all over the country are discussing the idea. Some of them think that in addition to putting lights on the links they should put them on the golfers.

* * *

And in the case of particularly dumb players it is figured it might be a good idea to put lights on the golf sticks and set fire to the balls.

* * *

The Pain Fireworks Company is experimenting with a view to turning out a ball that will be part golf ball and part skyrocket, the idea being to have the ball throw out a red light at a given height and trace its course to the "lay."

* * *

It is thought the greens committees could meet the cost of upkeep and repairs by charging admission to outsiders to come in and see the golf club fireworks.

* * *

Of course, it may always be necessary for all-night golfers to carry a little extra illumination on the side. An electric light plant is apt to break down any time. This will make it not so much a matter of how many clubs a player carries as how many flashlights.

* * *

"Well, I went over the eighteen holes last night in 121," a night golfer may soon be saying.

"Strokes?" may be the suspicious query.

"No; matches," will be the reply, if he is honest.

* * *

On crowded courses (certainly on all public links) it will be the better part of valor to require all golfers to display lamps front and ear and put on their dimmers when approaching players coming in an opposite direction.

* * *

Caddies will be provided with searchlights for the purpose of locating lost balls. Some lights will then have to be provided for the purpose of locating the caddies.

Players will be required to hang a red lantern twenty paces back of a green upon which they are "putting," and to remove the same and give the clear signal with a green light when departing.

* * *

Golf-widows are in for a tougher time than ever. When golf clubs are run on a matinee and evening basis the only way the wife can get in contact with her husband will be to follow him around with a torch. He'll be home on rainy nights only.

* * *

However, there's one thing you've got to admit in favor of the new idea; a man franky looks much better in golf pants after dark.

* * *

And, incidentally, his golf always looks better that way.

PEOPLE OF HARBIN WARMLY GREET RUSSIAN REFUGEES

[By Associated Press]

HARBIN, Manchuria, Aug. 16.—Five sturdy Russian peasants, remnants of General Dieterich's last small band of "Whites" who stood out against the Bolsheviki at Vladivostok until the decisive battle that settled the fate of that town, drifted into Harbin one night recently, having run the gauntlet of Chinese bandits from Kirin, 300 miles away.

The experiences of these refugees were typical of those of thousands who were scattered broadcast when the anti-bolshevik campaign in Siberia finally failed.

When the Russian wanderers arrived the beach of the broad Sungari river where the Chinese Eastern railway crosses, connecting Moscow with the Pacific ocean, was crowded with holiday makers from Harbin. Yachts and small boats dotted the stream, and Chinese junks moved slowly before the wind against the swift current. One craft approaching the shore attracted attention. It was long and narrow with high prow and stern, Russian fashion, and carried a single sail. Nosing its way to shore a rope was flung out, followed a moment later by a tall, sun-tanned Russian of the Siberian type. He made the rope fast to a post, then slowly removed a shabby head-piece bearing some resemblance to a fur cap and began crossing himself with the fervor of one who has reached haven after a perilous voyage.

The holiday crowd drew nearer and watched the five occupants of the boat as they unloaded their few belongings, meanwhile plying them with questions. It soon became known the strange travelers were from Kirin, and they were given a warm welcome.

For eighteen days they had drifted down the river from that place, through a bandit infested region, headed for Harbin, the only Russian city not under Bolshevik rule. They hope here to find some means of earning a living until better days, when they may return to their own country.

FINE TRIBUTE TO RETIRING STATE OFFICIAL

A testimonial of tribute to a career which is unique in the annals of state public service departments has been tendered to Dr. J. S. Crumbine, retiring state health officer of Kansas, in a set of resolutions on the announcement of his new affiliation as associated director of medical service of the American Child Health association, a national organization working in the public health field through practical demonstration and educational means, for improvement of the health care of the children of the nation.

Dr. Crumbine, the first full-time state health officer ever appointed in Kansas, has been actually also the creator of his own department. From a single part-time officer and a stenographer, it has grown through his efforts into a modern state organization of seven divisions, drawing university and industrial forces by unique cooperative relations into the health service of the state.

The resolution read in part as follows:

"The Kansas state board of health accepts with deepest regrets the resignation of Dr. Samuel Jay Crumbine as its secretary and executive officer, and wishes to put on record the following statement:

"Dr. Crumbine has served the state of Kansas as secretary of the state board of health for the long term of 19 years. During his term of service, Kansas has advanced from lowest to highest rank in matters of health. His administration has been marked by keen judgment, unfailing courtesy, absolute honesty, and skill of a rare order amounting almost to genius. The members of the state board of health extend to the people of the great state of Kansas their sincere regrets that we are no longer to retain the service of this eminent health officer for the state he has rejoiced to serve; as members we feel a keen personal loss, for individually we know Dr. Crumbine as a true man, a sympathetic friend, a loyal worker and indeed a kindred soul—and it is hereby,

"Resolved, that Kansas and the Kansas state board of health, deeply deploring our loss of a great man, rejoice with him in his call to fields of wider service."

As an officer of the American Child Health association, Dr. Crumbine aims to work out, on the basis of his long and intimate knowledge of state health work, methods by which the work of a voluntary educational agency such as the American Child Health association can be built into the most effective and valuable support of a governmental department. The headquarters of the association are at 532 Seventeenth street, Washington.

Lady Hyde, Who Asks Removal of Brother as Leiter Estate Trustee

Making charges of misfeasance and mismanagement in the control of the $100,000,000 estate of Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer Chicago merchant, Lady Marguerite Hyde, widow of the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, and herself a trustee in the property, asks the removal of her brother, Joseph Leiter, as trustee and a strict accounting of his stewardship. The petition, filed in Chicago, is the result of a bitter Leiter lost $5,000,000 in an attempt to corner the wheat market.

TOM MIX MAKES NEW FRIENDS AT THE GLENDALE

New friends were made by Tom Mix last night at the Glendale Theatre where his latest tale of the western plains, "3 Jumps Ahead," was shown for the first time in this city.

After seeing the last few of the Tom Mix pictures, it did not seem possible to invent new stunts for every picture, but his latest screen offering exceeds even the best of his previous pictures. At least two new and thrilling stunts are offered in this photoplay for the entertainment of motion picture fans.

Tom Mix in "3 Jumps Ahead" shares the honors with "Tony," the remarkable horse who has become known to thousands of fans in every city. The new leading lady for Tom Mix is Alma Bennett, one of the most beautiful actresses appearing before the camera today. Although Miss Bennett is very young, her work has attracted considerable attention and her role in this production is capably handled.

This story deals with the activities of a band of cattle rustlers of the old west and their subsequent defeat at the hands of the Texas Rangers. The rustlers capture Mix and take him to their secret cave which has its entrance beneath a waterfall. In order to enter the cave the men ride through the water and thus come to a rock walled fortress. Mix escapes from the rustler's stronghold and rescues the father of the girl he loves. Then he leads the Rangers in pursuit of the bandits.

In order to cut off pursuit, the bandits destroy a bridge over a deep canyon and then continue their flight in a stagecoach. But Mix leaps the canyon which is twenty feet wide and ninety feet deep. This is one of the most remarkable stunts ever shown in motion pictures and will give even the most confirmed movie fan a new thrill.

If you like a fast moving western tale with plenty of thrilling stunts, superb photography, an interesting love story and a capable cast, then this picture will surely entertain you.

MacMULLINS ARE BACK FROM LONG TRIP IN NORTH

William P. MacMullin is enthusiastic over the delights of the wilderness on Walker river between Yosemite national park and the Lake Tahoe country, in which he and Mrs. MacMullin spent two weeks in a lone cabin, fifteen miles from any other habitation and from which they have just returned. He worries his sporting friends by telling of the rainbow, speckled and cut-throat trout 15 to 18 inches long of which he caught the limit, and of the tonic of the air in the high altitude in which they camped. Said he: "We were by auto up Green creek to an altitude of 8500 feet and then rode pack horses to a point above the snow line at 11,500 feet, being accompanied by experienced guides. The temperature averaged 30 degrees above at breakfast time and we had to wear overcoats most of the time. We kept a fire all night in the cabin and slept under four blankets, lulled to slumber by the rushing torrent of the Green creek which flowed in front of the cabin.

"We returned via the Tioga pass, stopping for several days in the Yosemite valley, which is the poor man's paradise. He can buy there as cheaply as in Glendale, is given a free camping place and can patronize fine cafeterias and enjoy a free concert and dance every night.

"Within the past month big cinnamon and black bears have been coming in to get the camp garbage. When the authorities discovered it they built a platform on which the garbage is heaped and then trained searchlights on it so they can be seen. By midnight there are sometimes forty or fifty bears there."

Truths in Epigram

A common mind can realize the greatness of the ocean when it is storm-tossed; it is a finer soul that is filled with awe; also by its stillness and solitude.—Swing.

Let ignorance talk as it will, learning has its value.—La Fontaine.

Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it.—Old Testament.

PLAYING AT ISOLATION

Advocates of national isolation must know that they are clamoring for the impossible. Due respect for their intelligence enforces this concession. Nobody is able to imagine them quite so futile and foolish as they seem.

A political writer of standing and experience recently essayed the role of reporter. As such he visited every state in the union. He interviewed the leaders of the two great parties, and the citizens in general. Reducing his findings to a conclusion, he declared that 47 per cent of voters are in favor of the League of Nations, while 84 per cent support the World Court, proposed by the late President Harding, and fought by such "republicans" as Borah, Johnson and La Follette, all engaged in boring from within; which is to say, that as titular republicans they thought themselves more competent to harm the organization, than by frankly leaving it, and making their assaults from without.

In this country there is a theory that the majority rules. Apparently the majority is unfriendly to the League of Nations, so that matter may be regarded as settled, always with the possibility that a majority may vanish. Applying the same rule, the Court of Nations appears to be favored greatly. It was the desire of President Harding; it is believed to be the desire of President Coolidge. Of course the isolationists fight it. It reduces their harangues to such absurdity that the spectacle impresses even themselves.

Should disputes be settled by peaceful methods or by the sword? Advocates of the World Court believe in the peaceful methods.

MONEY FOR A PEACE PLAN

The offer of $100,000 for an adequate peace plan, made by Mr. Bok, has points of excellence. There is no likelihood that anybody will earn the money. Could such a plan be devised by an individual the service to humanity would be beyond price. The good in the proffer is that it will promote thought along lines tending to uplift humanity. The more war is studied, the more repellent its aspects; the more grotesque and unnecessary, resort to the force of arms, involving loss of life and property, and the paralyzing of industry.

Nobody knows who wrote the immortal poems ascribed to Homer; only that they were written. There even is uncertainty as to authorship of the stupendous works that bear the name of Shakespeare. Yet through some combination of intelligences the world has been enriched by literary products vastly beyond the power of any one man to have put forth. May it not be so touching the great subject of peace?

Thousands of devoted men and women are working on the problem. Here and there are found suggestions that seem to have merit. There is as yet no perfect, workable and comprehensive solution. Perhaps this does not mean that the world is forever to grope in such darkness as that of the present. The gleams of light, breaking through the clouds in mere flashes, may in the end become an illuminating radiance. Perhaps in that day the name of some man will be connected with the result, but countless men would be, each in his own small measure, responsible. The idea is at work in the collective minds of the nations.

AN EAGER FIELD

One of the strongest arguments that could be advanced for making the presidential term longer than four years, is that the second half of any president's first term becomes in some measure devoted to making preparations for a second term. If the incumbent lacks aspirations on his own behalf, the prominent citizens who have been named by inspired friends, begin to appear in swarms.

The untimely death of President Harding varied the usual program by the projection of a new personality into the field. It also stimulated a lot of men who had regarded Mr. Harding as the great obstacle between themselves and the nomination. As to most of these, it is fair to state that, while perhaps the choice of a small coterie of intimates, they do not represent any popular sentiment, and behind them there is nothing but their own desire, and the equation of accident, that always has to be considered.

Moreover, the present scramble is in bad taste. It began before the late president had been laid to rest. The candidate who utilized a period of acute sorrow to what he deemed his personal advantage, ought by such act to be regarded as having made himself an impossibility.

THE VICE PRESIDENCY

Jests concerning the retirement from activity experienced by a vice president, do not accord with the dignity and importance of the office. To preside over the senate is no mean task. Under President Harding the vice presidency had been made to assume a new importance, for the vice president was regular in attendance at cabinet meetings. He thus was able to enter freely into the spirit of the administration. There should be no special difficulty in gathering up loose ends, and plans already formulated could be carried forward without confusion.

Six times vice presidents have been elevated through the death of a president. One of these was Roosevelt, who had fought strenuously against accepting second place on the ticket. Tragedy made him president, and so well he served a major part of McKinley's term that he was elected for a complete term. He was a great president, highly useful to his country, where, as throughout the world, his name is remembered and his influence felt. But had he not first been vice president, there is no certainty that he ever would have reached the executive chair. Thus his acceptance of the minor station, although reluctant, was fortunate. The rule might work otherwise.

Hiram Johnson might have been vice president. He scorned the opportunity. But for this he would now be president. That is to say, the man who had fought the benign policies of Mr. Harding, had traduced and belittled the administration; who had been advocated chiefly by the most dangerous element of the yellow and disloyal press, is the man who would be in the White House, to undo, so far as he might, the work that Harding had accomplished, and defeat the hopes that had been the incentive of the leader for whom the country mourns.

So the vice presidency is no small office. It is a very honorable and vital office. The choice of a man to fill it may have a deep significance, and bear heavily in forming the national future.

Courtship may be a romance, but marriage sometimes transforms it into profane history.

A pessimist says there is but one thing more awkward than a man learning to dance, and that is a woman learning to swim.

It is better to point with pride than to view with alarm.

It doesn't take a very large trouble to worry the small mind.

SURGERY DE LUXE

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

The nurse fainted—hence this article.

The nurse was young and she had no business being a nurse anyway. The facial surgeon keeps her because he likes her and because she needs the money. He tries to train her not to faint, but her stomach has a way of rising up and waltzing at inconvenient intervals and the effect is disastrous.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

On the special afternoon of which I write the surgeon was "doing" a pair of eyelids, a simple if exacting operation; and the nurse took the count before he was through the first lid with his fast and sharp clipping scissors.

"Too bad," remarked the surgeon, and he gave a couple of snips to the superfluous lid.

"I don't mind," said the patient, "and I can't see why the nurse takes it so hard. That nouvokine is potent and—say, surgeon, do you do many operations of this kind?"

"Several a week," said the surgeon, merrily snipping away, "and about as many men submit to it as women. A drooping lid can never frame an eye and people have come to understand that what the eye suggests the mind accepts. You can't make any kind of impression if the eye is offended.

"Looking after one's face is more than vanity. Think on the various phases of revulsion that one suffers from facial defects, ranging all the way from absolute deformities to eccentricities like, for example, the drooping lids that I am snipping away.

"Anybody can realize that a person who is absolutely deformed would be shunned; for the same reason one who is half deformed will be half shunned and revulsion will be graded all the way down the line.

"Now age does some curious things to the human countenance. Surgery can correct many of them; but heretofore people have dodged the facial surgeon.

"My experience and my observation is that facial surgery pays the biggest dividend in proportion to the investment of anything yet found.

"To wear false hair and false teeth used to be considered a vanity; now we think a person who does not wear them is crazy. In a few years we shall look with contempt and pity on those who insist on keeping all the ravages of time on their faces. We shall soon feel that they owe it to their friends and relatives to go out looking as well as possible."

He returned to his snipping and I saw the snipee the following week and appreciated the truth of the surgeon's remarks. She looked at least ten years younger and her husband was radiant and very happy.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

THE SALES LETTER

A sales letter has only one object, one right to exist—to sell goods. A long sales letter is money thrown away. It is better to write three short letters, one following another, than to crowd too much into one letter that will find its place in the waste basket.

A sales letter should not be composed of one or two long, closely set together paragraphs. This is an age of pointed thrusts, not of laborious search for the pith of a writer's meaning. The paragraphs should be short and to the point.

People buy your product today, not because you go into all the "whys and wherefores" of your offering's being the best on the market, but because they see the name of your product over and over again in connection with some trademark or slogan that catches the eye or appeals to the imagination.

It is the "catchy way of putting things before your prospective customers" that counts today. It is keeping your product before their eyes in the same dress day after day that gets you your buyers. And after you have made your first sales, it is the quality of your goods that determines whether or not you will be able to continue in business.

Vocabulary

Titivate means to dress or spruce up; get or put into good trim; smarten or smarten one's self. It is a colloquialism or slang. Example: "They are hard worked men who want to be tactfully titivated." The Dial.

Queries

R. M. Work, Chicago: "In the following quotation, taken from a letter dictated in this office, please indicate which is correct, is or are: 'We wish to point out that the Third Liberty Loan 4¼'s due September 15, 1928, is (or are) selling around a 4.48% interest basis'."

Answer: The right word is are. The construction is similar to the following: Liberty Loan bonds are selling. . . . You could say, "The Third Liberty Loan 4¼ is selling."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

A man was patching a roof.

And a very good roof patcher at that.

And while he was patching the roof, his employer appeared.

And asked him how he was getting along.

And when he would have the job finished.

* * *

And the man said he hoped to have it finished in a day.

And his employer said that was pleasing.

It would lessen the expense.

And employers are usually pleased when expenses are lessened.

* * *

For profits depend upon expense largely.

And sometimes profit is eaten up by unnecessary expense.

For what should be saved is wasted.

And waste is one of the elements that undermine factories and shops and individuals and governments.

* * *

Then the employer said he was going away for the day.

And he expected a business caller at the house.

Which was a little distance from the barn or garage or whatever building it was that was being patched.

* * *

And would the roof patcher keep an eye on the front door.

And be careful not to miss the business caller when he came.

And give him a letter the employer wanted delivered.

And the roof patcher said he would.

* * *

So the employer went away.

And the roof patcher went on with his work.

But not as before.

For he had to watch the road and the doorway.

And when he went to drive a nail and watch the doorway he hit his thumb.

Which interfered with his work.

* * *

And when he devoted his time to watching the road and doorway he did not drive any nails.

Because his eyes were elsewhere.

And the best workman cannot drive nails and keep his eyes elsewhere.

* * *

So the roof patching lagged.

And the roof patcher, having promised to do the job promptly, devoted his time to patching.

And took his eyes off the roadway.

And looked for the business caller who was to come.

* * *

And then he hit his thumb again.

And while he was nursing his thumb and trying to drive nails with a sore thumb, the business caller came and went.

But the roof patcher did not see him.

Because his eyes were then on his job and not on the road.

* * *

But he continued to patch.

And watch.

And watch.

And patch.

Until his employer came home.

And noted that the roof patching was far behind schedule.

And learned from the neighbors shortly that the business caller had come and gone.

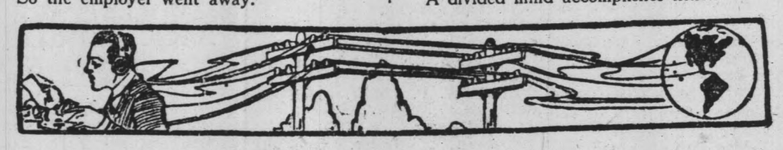
* * *

So the roof patcher tried to do two jobs and did neither.

And the employer tried to get two jobs done for the cost of one and got neither done.

* * *

A divided mind accomplishes little.



Songs of the Poets

Lullaby—By J. G. Holland

Rockaby, lullaby, bees in the clover!
Crooning so drowsily, crying so low,
Rockaby, lullaby, dear little rover!
Down into wonderland,
Down to the under-land
Go, oh, go!
Down into wonderland go!

Rockaby, lullaby, rain on the clover!
(Tears on the eyelids that waver and weep!)
Rockaby, lullaby—bending it over!
Down on the mother-world,
Down on the other world,
Sleep, oh, sleep!
Down on the mother-world sleep!

Rockaby, lullaby, dew on the clover!
Dew on the eyes that sparkle at dawn!
Rockaby, lullaby, dear little rover!
Into the stilly world,
Into the lily world,
Gone, oh gone!
Into the lily world gone!

IS JAPAN CIVILIZED?

By DR. FRANK CRANE

YOU must judge whether or not a nation is civilized, not by your likes and dislikes, not by your fears nor your politics, but by certain definite standards.

I find the cleanest list of these standards indicated in the Billings Lectures delivered by Dr. Jabez T. Sunderland. I will follow his order.

1. The first mark of civilization is public order. No civilization is possible without a general obedience to law on the part of the people. All authorities agree that there is no nation in the world where public order is better maintained than in Japan.

2. The next test is the spread of general intelligence and education. Every child in Japan from six to fourteen years of age is in school. Dr. Eliot of Harvard declared that Japan spends a larger proportion of her public money for education than the United States does, and has reached a higher standard.

3. Japan is full of newspapers and periodicals. Some newspapers have a daily circulation of a quarter of a million. Everybody, from the highest class to the lowest, reads.

4. There is as much political freedom, as much freedom of the press and of speech in Japan as in England. It has a constitution and representative government.

5. Civilization is tested by the degree to which a nation has turned from superstition to science. Japanese have as keen a zest for science as any other people. Her students are in universities all over the world, and many of her citizens have made their mark in original scientific research.

6. Art is highly developed among the Japanese. They are a nation of idealists, not materialists. Lafcadio Hearn said that Japanese art was a hundred years ahead of western art. The Japanese have long passed the period of slavish copying, their thought is of mystical significance and symbolic suggestion rather than of photographic reproduction. They do some of the most elaborate wood carving in the world, also inlaying with gold and silver, the making of fine pottery, also incomparable lacquer work, and no nation surpasses Japan in the art of landscape gardening.

7. In navigation Japan ranks with the foremost nations of the world. Her battleships and ocean liners are as good as any.

8. Scientific agriculture is taught extensively. They have two university colleges of agriculture, five higher agricultural schools, and about 200 institutions of the same kind of lower grade.

9. Japan has a well developed and smooth running system of railroads.

10. Her mail service, telegraphs and telephones are good and extensive.

11. The Japanese are probably the cleanest people in the world, both as to their houses and to their person. They have excellent sanitary laws which are strictly enforced.

12. Medical, surgical and hospital conditions are of the very best.

13. Temperance is a mark of civilization. The Japanese are more temperate than even America under prohibition, and far more than the people of Great Britain or Germany.

14. Crimes of violence are fewer than in the United States and in most of the countries of Europe. Nothing in Japan is so horrible as the lynchings in the United States.

15. As to the social evil, Dr. Gulick says that "the shameless immoralities to be found in New York, London, Paris and Berlin surpass anything in Japan."

16. The rumor has been widely circulated that the Chinese are more honest than the Japanese, so that Japanese banks have to have Chinese cashiers. This story is absolutely false. There are more than 2300 Japanese banks in Japan, and not one of them employes a Chinese cashier or general manager.

If therefore you think that Japan is uncivilized, it is about time to think again.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Nobody would envy the new chancellor of Germany his job. He comes into power, if such be the proper characterization, at a troubled time. The whole future of Germany appears to be at stake. The fault must rest with Germans, and is not to be shifted to the French.

HENRY JAMES

The basic trouble is that the Germans made an agreement, probably far less severe than would have been the case had they been the victors. They made it without a thought of living up to it. This caused trouble, for it brought the French forces. Out of the presence of the French grew a discontent that reached all classes.

Meanwhile the poison of bolshevism had been insidiously injected into the German mentality. The result is to be seen in an uprising that threatens the very existence of Germany as a unit. There is manifest danger that the red flag is to be its emblem. Aside from this there is demand for Rhineland republic.

Poor Germany! It reaps that which it had sown.

Money and time are being devoted to dragging to light the relics of ancient civilizations. Thus much is added to human knowledge. Men begin to realize that, after all, they are not so important. OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

TAKE A CHANCE

Pudge, aged seven, the sort that is always first over the fence, was urging Charlie, aged nine, to be more of a sport. Charlie was the sort that stayed on the side of the fence he happened to be on and never even stretched his neck to see what might be beyond.

"You're too slow Charlie, you ought to take a chance."

Charlie slowly turned his head and gazed sadly at the enthusiast. "What d'y'u mean, take a chance?"

"Do something! The fellers think you're a dope. Won't ever take a chance or anything. Be a sport!"

"Like you?" asked Charlie cautiously feeling his way on strange ground. "You're always getting into trouble. I don't want any trouble!"

"Ah, what's trouble? Y'u mean a jawin' once in a while or getting my clothes torn or somethin'? What's that? Mom don't really care as long as I'm not killed or something."

"How do you know you won't be? Then you'll be good and dead. What good will that do you?"

"Ah! I won't be dead. I won't even get hurt!"

"You broke your collar bone this spring and last year you got poison ivy. 'En you were good and sick."

"Well, what of it?" fought back the valiant one. "Didn't I get over it? 'Twasn't so bad either. Only had to stay in a few days and I got all the nice things to eat I wanted."

"Yeh, and you couldn't eat 'em!"

"Just the same I could 'a had them. And I had some fun. If you don't take a chance you won't ever have any fun. If you think the limb will break if you get out on it then you won't get the cherries and they're always the best on the whole tree."

"What's the good of the berries if you fall down and break your collar bone or something? What's the good of hunting eggs if you get all over poison ivy? Use some sense, why don't you? My mother says you're the crackbrainedest boy in the whole neighborhood and that you'd make us all like you if we weren't careful. And I'm careful."

"You betcha, you are!" said Pudge in disgust. "And you're no sport. Never take a chance. Won't even climb a tree. Go on y'u big stiff. Shake yourself and climb a tree. Dare you!"

But careful Charlie had retreated into the house away from the disturber.

There's much to be said for the lad who takes the chance and climbs the tree. He has to if he is to get the view, and the cherries. And the limb isn't always so treacherous.

There comes in the lives of parents every now and then, the time when they must take a chance with the children, postpone that time as often as they may. At last you will have to take a chance and climb a tree. You may get the cherries, you may draw the broken collar bone, but there is no help for it, except like Pudge, to be a good sport.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

I feel a sneaking sort of pity for the young saphead across the street. His home is breaking up under him, so to speak—something like a shoddy-built life raft—and he knows it and does not know how to stop the breakage.

"Teak built," says Mrs. Pilgrim, scornfully. "Wooden-headed. Why doesn't he laugh once in a while?"

Whenever my wife attacks one of us men I always rush to the rescue. Privately I agree with her, but it would never do to afford her that satisfaction. So I counter by a sneer at the young wife.

"All fluff," say I. "Hasn't a thought above dress and dancing slippers."

We are both right, but in the meantime the young folks across the street are heading straight for divorce. Yet neither of them want it. Mrs. Pilgrim caught the young wife crying the other day, and the young husband is as sorry as a funeral mute during the morning ride to work. And no one can do anything for them. Theirs is one of the cases that must be attended to by themselves alone.

"He makes me tired," the young wife sobbed to my adorable helpmeet. "He never wants me to have any fun."

Before they were married they went to a dance or a theater or a card party almost every evening. No doubt the young husband would defend this reprehensible conduct by alleging that he had to do so to win her. But immediately after the ceremony he tried to relapse. He planned to buy a home and keep up his life insurance and live the sort of a life that one reads in old books should be lived by every wise young man. His theory of matrimony sounded to the lady a good deal like the book of rules in a penitentiary.

He is right, of course. When he is too old to work he will be able to live on his income. But she is right, too. There is no reason why a girl should abandon hope merely because she married a well-meaning young man. A little less dancing on her part and a little more on his would solve the whole trouble.

But he will probably pay alimony.

Curing your Golf Troubles
By Jim Barnes

Dear Mr. Barnes:
I have a great tendency even with my tee shots to hit the ball too high in the air. It has been suggested to me by a friend that if I used clubs with deeper faces I might get away from this. Do you think that this would prove helpful? Or could you suggest any other remedy? W. P.

Answer:
The suggestion is a very good one and may prove nite a help to you and is worth trying. The idea of course, is that the deeper faced clubs have the weight somewhat higher up from the ground and delivers the driving force more nearly the center of the ball. It may also help you to play with clubs that have a little less loft than you have been accustomed to.

Generally speaking the habit of hitting the ball up into the air comes from keeping the weight too much back on the right leg, so that instead of hitting on out after the ball the club is lifted up too quickly.

The remedy is to check up your balance at the top of the backswing. See to it that the left foot, or rather the ball and toes of it, are carrying quite an appreciable part of the weight at the top of the swing.

You will then be in a position to hit the ball before the club has reached the lowest point on the swing, and to hit on through after the ball. This will keep the ball down.

REDWOOD STUMP IS HOUSE BASE

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Aug. 15.—A house with a foundation six times as old as the United States of America is one of the show places of the little forest town of Mill Valley, northeast of here. The foundation is the stump of an immense redwood tree and the two-room structure is built upon it lighthouse fashion, a dining room on the first floor and a bedroom above.

The house was built 20 years ago for P. F. Ferguson of San Francisco, along original lines. Judging from its state of preservation, the foundation at least is due to last many years more.

ADVERTISE YOURSELF, AND LET OTHERS READ YOUR ADS

THE SHADOW HOUR

By JOHN BRECK

"Those hills!" breathed the artist beside me. "I've never seen them look like this before!" Probably not. For no sane driver cares to head full into the setting sun around the turns of a ticklish mountain road—not without good reasons.

"Every bush stands out—every leaf!" he went on. "It's as if you saw them through a stereoptican!" I chuckled. For the slanting rays no longer struck down through them the diffuse about their feet, or reflected upward to a mid-day sky. So every bush wore an aureole about its crown while it stood knee-deep in shade, every leaf which glanced the light from its gilded face was thrown into added relief by its dark back.

But he was due for another shock, if I had rightly read the signs of a deep blue haze which was making the distant ridges look as flat as if they were torn from gray blotting-paper. As we climbed the crest, looked down on the twenty miles between us and the Pacific, he got it. The shore seemed less than five miles away; the valleys beyond, and the shining ocean itself were inundated by a sea of mist. White mist, white as the sea of clouds one sees from a mountain-top swallowing the evening gold without a gleam save from the breeze-shattered crests of its foamy breakers. Level it lay, level and undulant as water itself, but still, still as the snow on a winter prairie.

Out of it rose a hawk, her shoulders flashing bronze as she reached the sun beyond the mist-sea's shoreline. She circled, came to rest on a nearby fence, facing the glare with her unblinking gaze; her flat head, sunk between her shoulders, her half-spread wings, cast behind her an outline like a wind-blown tree's. On the bare slope ahead a tiny mouse sat up, but its silhouette was big as a kangaroo. She pounced.

As we coasted silently on down the grade we surprised a young bobcat impersonating a boulder while he watched a flock of quail settle down in a thicket, every feather of their top-knots clear-cut in the betraying light. I had time to note why a bobcat's tail is brief; its excited writhings do not show beyond his furry flanks. Then he cast a look across his shoulders and galloped off like a frightened calf.

On down, we plunged into that dewy surf, so soft, so evanescent—thin, we hardly saw it till it blurred our windshield. But the happy owls knew how it hid their ominous shadows from their game. The snakes, who overlie their tell-tale doubles at high noon, or glide through the shadowless dark, were all in hiding. But not safe. For Bre'er Coon's black-ringed tail was hoisted like a semaphore above a kill that dragged between his paws as he spraddled off for cover.

The shadow-hour, be it that of dusk or dawn, sunrise or moonset, the dark or the light of it, that's the time to use your eyes. And anyone but a trail-hunter will tell you so.

SPAN OF HUMAN LIFE IS GROWING LONGER

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift

GRADUALLY the span of life in the United States is being lengthened, and among the interesting possibilities of the future is the question of how far these processes will go. But this is a problem that only the future can decide. Medical science, hygiene, right living and right thinking are combining to give a constantly greater expectancy to one's term of years, and it may be said that this prolongation of the period between birth and death constitutes the finest possible example of thrift.

S. W. STRAUS

In the last 130 years there has been an increase, according to the most reliable statistics, of 23 years in the average length of life in this country. In 1789, statistics compiled in Massachusetts revealed the average span of life as 35.5 years; in 1855 it was 40 years, and there has since been a gradual increase. In 1910 it had risen throughout the nation to 52 years; in 1921, when the latest available figures were compiled, it had been extended to 58 years.

What this increase has meant in human accomplishment is beyond calculation.

Much is said about this being the golden age of youth, and all such statements are true, for, with our efficiently organized business life, our educational advantages and our broad, modern vision, opportunities for the young man were never so splendid.

Back of all these accomplishments is the restless spirit of progress. They express the human impulse both to live longer and to live more usefully.

We pass this way but once. It is well that we not only make the most of our time but that we add to our period of usefulness and service the greatest possible number of years. To do so is one of the most exalted exemplifications of true thrift.

A wise man would rather be ignored than bored.

ATTRACTIVE KNITTED DRESSES

Knitted frocks of silk and wool are as useful as they are attractive.

Lingerie Becomes as Sophisticated as the Gown Beneath Which it Lurks

Lingerie is no longer the simple child of nature that it once was. No more are sheer white "undies" of nainsook hung out to bleach in the summer sun and wind. The fashionable underthings of the present day must be washed with understanding and dried in a subdued light if they are to survive. For the mode decrees that they be of Crepe de Chine, Crepe Georgette and Crepe Marocain of flower-like delicacy.

In color the lingerie is chiefly white, pink or pale green, although there is a growing tendency to have it match the enveloping frock exactly.

For instance, to wear with this enchanting "rest gown" of mauve Crepe de Chine, mauve Georgette lingerie is an absolute necessity. In the model seen at the atelier of Henri Creange, the fashion authority, the matching underthings were even trimmed with the same lace as the gown.

The gown itself falls quaintly from a deep yoke of lace, in pleats to a hem of uneven, scalloped length. The drooping sleeves, not content with a wide beginning, continue to spread until they form a cape which touches the floor in back.

The little mules should not be overlooked. They are made of very thin French kid, lavender in shade and oddly stepped across the instep.

ENGLAND SPENT £29,000,000 IN OCCUPATION OF TURKEY

[By Associated Press]

LONDON, Aug. 16.—It has cost England £29,115,000 sterling for the occupation of Constantinople and the adjacent area since the Armistice in 1918, Premier Baldwin told the House of Commons recently.

These figures, he added, did not represent the extra cost to the taxpayer of the occupation, since the greater part of the occupying forces would otherwise have been employed elsewhere. The extra cost was estimated at £16,000,000 sterling. The premier further stated that the allied governments have decided to forego any claim against Turkey for the cost of occupation of Turkish territory.

SAYS AMERICAN MOVIES CORRUPT FOREIGN MORALS

[By Associated Press]

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Bulbaria, Aug. 16.—"American film presentations which would not be tolerated in America are doing their conspicuous share in ruining the morals of the Near East," said Dr. T. T. Holloway, American missionary and educator in Bulgaria, in speaking recently with a representative of the Associated Press.

"In three recent crimes which have stirred the public, police investigation has disclosed that the inspiration of the crime, and the suggestion of the method by which it was attempted, came from an American film recently shown in the community."

WE WOMEN

By BETTY BRAINERD

ADVENTURES IN CONTENTMENT

I went off on a long trip around the country recently. In New York I saw a lady emerge from a costly limousine that was decorated by a chauffeur in livery and a footman. She boarded the same train I did and she seemed to be happy and contented with life. She was obviously a woman of wealth, education and culture.

In Houston I saw an old negro woman, evidently a relic of slavery days, come on the train and shuffle into the section reserved for negroes. There was a mirthful twinkle in her eyes and she, too, seemed to be happy with her lot.

In Atlanta a baby in the arms of a young mother dressed in mourning made social advances to the porter. The woman appeared to be one who was left in a tragically impoverished financial condition by her husband's death, but a happiness sweetened by sorrow and understanding and appreciation of her husband seemed to animate her. I thought that she, too, was contented and resigned to her lot and that the baby was also contented.

In Birmingham I overheard a conversation between a woman of thirty and her husband. I couldn't help hearing it. The couple occupied the seat behind me and the woman was complaining because she had only two evening gowns and very little jewelry.

She was clearly at war with the world in which she lived—discontented; and I wondered what contentment was and how women can best attain it.

Are good dresses necessary to it? The question seems absurd. It is absurd. And yet there are women who make themselves miserable for no other reason. They become dissatisfied and morbid. They brood. Because they haven't as many dresses as they would like to have a cloud is cast over their lives. In time the cloud turns black and it begins to rain. The sunshine of happiness and contentment moves on and passes out of view. Then the thunder of discontent reverberates in their minds and hearts and eventually perhaps comes divorce.

Contentment, of course, depends largely upon one's point of view. Gustave Nadaud spoke of dying content if he could only look upon Carcassonne. I am not altogether convinced that an evening gown or a jewel is worth dying for.

NEW SPEED LAW IS EFFECTIVE ON SEPT. 1

New speed limit regulations governing motorists on California highways will go into effect September 1. And they put a new angle on reckless driving, according to officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

In the first place the law declares it a crime for any person to drive any vehicle on a public highway at such a speed as to endanger the life, limb or property of any person. Even if the autoist is driving at a speed less than that prescribed by the law, but in such a manner as to endanger the lives of others, he will be due for prosecution.

This is the "joker" in the new speed regulations: that the speed-mad motorist who is a hound for obeying the letter of the law but fails to uphold its spirit, will get jumped on!

It does not make any difference if the motorist did not intend to injure anyone. Under the new law, he is a criminal if he fails to drive at a careful and prudent speed under all circumstances.

The motorist is required by the new Motor Vehicle Act to drive at a careful and prudent speed, not greater than is reasonable and proper, having due regard to the traffic, surface and width of the highway on which he finds himself.

Severe penalties will follow an infraction of this section of the new law, say state authorities, and the Auto club warns motorists to become thoroughly acquainted with it.

Under the new Motor Vehicle Act the following speed limits are prescribed, and there is no joke about these prescriptions either, say club officials:

You must drive at fifteen or less miles per hour in all business districts; at obstructed railway crossings; at highway intersections where the driver's view is obstructed; in going around curves where the driver's view is obstructed; and in passing schools when persons are entering or leaving the grounds.

In the residence district the speed limit is twenty miles per hour. Under conditions other than those mentioned, the speed limit is thirty-five miles per hour. All of these limits apply to night as well as in the day time.

They had had a slight difference of opinion, but he acknowledged his error quite generously by saying:

"You are right and I am wrong, as you generally are. Good-by, dear," and he hurried off to catch his train.

"So nice of him to put it like that," she said to herself. And then—well, then she began to think about it.

Oh, a smile is good and it lights the way,
And it brings the sun to a cloudy day,
It's good when it shines through a mist of tears,
It's good when the storm and the gray sky clears,
For the dull, sad hour's beguiling;
And a smile is good when the way is rough,
But the smile just now is not enough,
You've got to keep on smiling.

And a song is good when the heart is light,
And a song is good in the gloom of night;
A song is good by the great high road,
Where we bear the weight of the heavy load,
A song is good for bringing;
But a song's not good for now and then,
For the tear and the sorrow come again,
And we've got to keep on singing.

A step is good on the upward climb,
A firm, square step in tune and time!
An eye alight and a dauntless will,
And the path leads onward up the hill,
Where the clearer echoes blowing.
But whether the path be smooth or steep,
And whether we smile or whether we weep,
We've got to keep on going.

It's the daily thought for the daily need,
And the daily strength for the daily deed,
The daily prayer for the will to do,
And the [illegible]rage to fight the battle through
Wi[illegible]aught of fear or ruing;
The temple rises stone on stone,
And it's not the single deed alone,
We've got to keep on doing.

FRED N. BIGELOW TO RESIGN OFFICE

Announcement is made from the Los Angeles offices of the State Department of Agriculture that Fred N. Bigelow, State Market Director, will shortly place his resignation in the hands of Governor Richardson in order to take up the duties of his new position as secretary of the California-New York Steamship company, an organization recently formed which will operate a fleet of fast refrigerated ships carrying perishable fruits and vegetables from California ports to the Atlantic seaboard. C. S. Whitcomb, vice president of the California Fruit Growers Exchange, is president of the steamship company and is at present in the east perfecting arrangements for the taking over of seven modern ships which will immediately be equipped with refrigerator facilities of the cold-air type, each ship having a capacity of 250 car loads of perishables or general merchandise.

Mr. Bigelow has been State Market Director for a number of years and has earned a nation wide reputation as an authority on refrigerated transportation of food products and co-operative marketing, having made a very exhaustive study of both of these subjects, so closely related to the growth and prosperity of California from an agricultural standpoint. It is stated by Mr. Bigelow that approximately five millions of dollars will be saved annually by citrus growers and others producing perishable products, through the inauguration of the California-New York Steamship company and that a more perfect refrigeration can be maintained by water way transportation than by all rail shipment from coast to coast, this having been determined by experiments made by the State Department of Agriculture. A. P. Hammond, former Pacific Coast manager of the Luckenbach Steamship company operating nineteen ships in inter-coastal service, is general manager of the new company and the directorate will be made up of prominent citrus growers and others interested in the production and distribution of perishable food products. The general offices of the company will be located in Los Angeles. No announcements have been made as to who will succeed Mr. Bigelow as State Market Director.

GULF STATES FOLKS TO HOLD PICNIC

County registers for each county of each state will be open. Basket dinners will be carried. Coffee and badges supplied. Program will follow the dinner hour. All former residents of these states are invited.
